

Crellin Consulting provides high quality, strategic advice and services across the public, private and voluntary sectors. We offer a range of customer focused, creative solutions, delivered using a holistic and collaborative approach.

We are an independent organisation with strong social values that provides services to enable communities and individuals to prosper, particularly where those areas or individuals represent communities that are the most excluded (due to health, gender, race or poverty etc). We operate on an associates model and have a small team of professionals with whom we work on a regular basis to bring a great depth and breadth of skills to each commission.

We offer:

- clear strategic advice
- enabling services such as policy development, programme and service design, business case development, legacy planning and organisational support, training and mentoring (of staff and volunteers), capacity building, stakeholder and market research, feasibility studies, fundraising and investment to help organisations achieve their goals and move forward in this challenging financial climate
- concise and honest advice and evaluation (particularly impact management and measurement).

People, Places and Public Services

Crellin Consulting has experience and expertise in all aspects of policy development, service design and project development from planning and feasibility stages, through business case development, bid writing, commissioning and contracts. We are able to assist with effective engagement and co production with stakeholders and beneficiaries.

Assistance to clients can take the form of reviewing and evaluating existing provision, advising on future development and programme design, strategy and policy development, facilitation and dissemination events, training and project management. We can advise on or design impact measurement systems and monitoring requirements.
