

ABOUT US

Human Engine is a Financial Times top-ranked management consultancy with its origins in the public sector. Our team is made up of former local government officers who believe that the sector deserves better than it gets from traditional consulting firms – more personal, more human and more knowledgeable of the realities of modern public services.

We blend award-winning consulting expertise with lived experience of delivering modern public services. Since we started in 2018, we have worked with 30+ public sector organisations to transform their strategies, processes capabilities and cultures.

“Human Engine were an excellent partner to work with. They were mindful of, and flexible to, the expectations of a range of senior stakeholders. We had regular engagement throughout the process, and they were very communicative and responsive, raising risks and issues as they arose. They always had a professional approach to their work, and with the large number and range of local stakeholders engaged. The final reports were well presented and clear.”
