

Social Value Toolkit for Councils

Acknowledgements

This report and toolkit were produced by Simon Grove-White, who led the project initially as Principal Economic Development Officer for Community Wealth Building Officer at Oxford City Council and now as an independent consultant and researcher. The project would not have taken off without the support of some excellent former colleagues, including Councillor Ajaz Rehman, Ted Maxwell, and Clayton Lavallin at Oxford City Council. The ideas in the report and the accompanying toolkit have developed through an extensive collaboration between councils, academia, the private sector, the public benefit sector, legal professionals, consultants, and cooperatives. This was stimulated by the initial investment of Policy Lab funding by the CCIN which enabled a broad-based group to coalesce around a shared need for new approaches.

Demonstrating the power of shared-purpose collaboration to leverage a wider range of resources and engage people's intrinsic motivation, the toolkit has benefited immensely from the extensive pro-bono expert contributions of several key individuals. Special mentions must go to:

- Julian Blake (Stone King) and Mark Cook (Anthony Collins Solicitors) for clear-eyed, progressive, purpose-led legal interpretation throughout and for continuing to illuminate the 'art of the possible'
- Dr Carys Hughes, and Professor Julian Manley, and Sandra Hamilton for research and expertise on the historical context and emerging trends in Social Value, Community Wealth Building, and the problems of New Public Management.
- Interviews and focus groups expertly overseen by Professor Julian Manley, UCLan, and Dr Carys Hughes, UEL.
- Jonathan Bland, E3M and Social Business International, for strategic insight and building the links with a wider movement of collaborators
- Roland Karthaus of Inner Circle Consulting for insight and advice, and for developing the links with the Mission Led Procurement work of Camden Council and IIPP.

Given the challenges moving beyond current practice, the messages in the toolkit would have been much harder to demonstrate without the inspiring case studies which demonstrate the art of the possible. For this we are greatly indebted to the work of pioneering council officers, including:

- Andrea Glasspell at Wigan Council
- Joanne Blackwood at Hackney Council
- Gary Wallace at Plymouth City Council
- Natalie Evans and Christy Sui at Westminster City Council
- Shariat Rokneddin at Birmingham City Council

And to all those interviewed in the development of the toolkit:

- Shariat Rokneddin - Procurement Manager, Birmingham City Council
- Andrea Glasspell - Assistant Director of Community Wealth and Health, Wigan Council
- Michelle Price – Transformation Programme Manager, Wigan Council

- Natalie Evans – Head of Responsible Procurement & Supplier Relationship Management, Westminster City Council
- Christy Sui – Senior Procurement Officer, Westminster City Council
- Alison Marjoram - P3 (People, Potential, Possibilities)
- Victoria Webberly – CEO, P3 (People, Potential, Possibilities)
- Jonathan Bland – Managing Director, Social Business International, E3M
- Joanne Blackwood – Strategic Lead Change and Transformation, Hackney Council
- Jenny Zienau - Strategic Lead Change and Transformation, Hackney Council
- Wongani Mwanza – Architect, Transition by Design
- Laura Sewell – CEO, Flo's Place in the Park
- Marta Lomza – Community Gardens Coordinator, CAG Oxfordshire
- Anais Bozetine - Community Wealth Building Coordinator, CAG Oxfordshire

Further thanks go to all who made significant contributions to the discussions and deliberations through and alongside the working group meetings over the 18-month period, including:

- Jonathan Nunn – Policy and Partnerships Manager, Kirklees Council
- Councillor Ajaz Rehman – [former] Cabinet Member for Inclusive Communities, Oxford City Council
- Clayton Lavallin – Economic Development Manager, Oxford City Council
- Polly Robins – Director-Member, Outlandish
- Louise Townsend – [former] Social Value Director, Morgan Syndall
- Michelle McSorley – Residential Social Value Director, Wates Construction
- Katerina Aliri-Gent – Procurement Programme Manager, Manchester City Council
- Mark Levers – Strategic Commissioning Lead, Manchester City Council
- Nicola Hine – Policy Advisor, Rochdale Borough Council
- Chris Steward – Senior Policy Officer, Liverpool City Council
- Morgan Jones – Strategy and Innovation Manager, Cheshire West and Chester Council
- Matthew Broadbent – Principal Economic Officer, Oxford City Council
- Emily Urquhart – [former] Senior Policy Officer, Oxfordshire County Council
- Melissa Sage – [former] Head of Procurement, Oxfordshire County Council

Final thanks go to Andy Bellis at Coop News for the inspiring design and production, and for keeping his head as we made countless amendments. And to Nicola Huckerby at the CCIN, who guided us through the approval process, proofread it, and pulled all the elements together for the councils.coop website and launch.
